For Outing Wear in the Autumn JUST

NEW SWEATERS.

What the outdoor girl shall wear de- | pends very largely upon locality. Paris may say this is proper for mountainclimbing, that for tennis and golf; London may present designs suitable for English country needs; and when it comes time for girls in "the states" to plan a wardrobe for vacation needs they will have to adapt and change. The States are too big, the climate of too great variety to make possible an unchangeable mode.

It was we, I believe, that called into being the sweater, the garment of the unpretty name, but of infinite use. As the fall days descend upon us we are glad indeed to pull on this elastic and 'comfy" wrap. One can carry it so easily-it will not muss nor cumber--and when the mountain top is reached, the bright day has turned into cool evening, there is no better friend than the faith-

Londoners have improved on our early models, and now we have a presentable garment, and a variety to choose from. The first ones, those that had to be pulled on over the head, were certainly lacking are scarcely to be recognized as near relations of the natty garment of the pres-

It seems to us a not particularly sensible garment.

The surplice sweater is graceful; and we also have one that buttons down the front, is plain, but distinguished by a very broad belt, which looks like a baby's knitted band. The first is much the better. Collars liked are gray and utility rather than display.

Leather belts and tailored stocks are best for occasions informal enough for the sweater to be called into requisition Leather to-day comes in such pretty tones, and sweaters likewise. Green and copper are very effective, and a blending of colors is often seen in the knitted pretty high, however.

Other coats are made of the Scotch woolens, and this material is one that stands all sorts of weather. It is usualwraps, meant for utility and not show. Half loose designs are favored, and big sleeves and pockets. It makes a fine steamer wrap. Trimmings of leather are very appropriate; an attractive garment which was brought to our notice was a mixed brown and green Scotch wool trimmed with leather the tone of the brown in the cloth.

The question is asked if golf capes have quite gone out, and we would answer that a few people still cling to them for steamer wear. They, too, cost a pretty penny if one chooses good material-and a poor cloth will stand no exposure to wind and wave and sun.

Three-quarter coats, straight front and loosely belted in the back, are liked for steamer wear. One excellent model was made of dark blue ornamented with large gold buttons. But while the coat and jacket are more popular. there is a tendency to bring the cape again into favor, the year will show an increasing number of cape-like wraps. ELLEN OSMONDE

Art Building in Belgium. The king of Belgium is developing a mania for building that recalls King Ludwig II. of Bavaria. At present his palace is being rebuilt and the city of Brussels has sanctioned his plans for a "Mont des Arts," which will cost $40,-000,000. Near the Cinquantenaire park a triumphal arch is being built by royal command and the architects are busy for the king in Lacken, Ostende and Villefranche.
